1.0 Summary

In June 2010, the United States Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) promulgated the 1-hour primary sulfur dioxide (SO₂) National Ambient Air Quality Standard (NAAQS) of 75 parts per billion (ppb), which is met at an ambient air quality monitoring site, when the 3-year average of the 99th percentile of 1-hour daily maximum concentrations does not exceed 75 ppb. In the Data Requirements Rule for the 2010 1-Hour Sulfur Dioxide (SO₂) Primary National Ambient Air Quality Standard¹ (DRR), (80 FR 51052), USEPA directs air agencies to characterize the air quality in the vicinity of large SO₂ emission sources that exceeded specific annual emissions thresholds established in the final rule.

On March 2017, the Puerto Rico Environmental Quality Board (PREQB), hereafter, Puerto Rico Department of Environmental and Natural Resources (PRDNER), submitted to USEPA the information to be included in the Technical Support Document (TSD)², along with the 1-hour SO₂ modeling assessment and boundaries recommendations for the designation of Puerto Rico area. USEPA evaluated the PRDNER assessment and submitted specific technical comments. PRDNER review the comments, and submitted additional information between October and November 2017, which addressed the concerns, and allowed USEPA to finalize the nonattainment SO₂ designation process for Puerto Rico.

On January 2018, the USEPA published in the Federal Register (83 FR 1098) the Air Quality Designations for the 2010 Sulfur Dioxide (SO₂) Primary National Ambient Air Quality Standard-Round 3. The final rule established, the nonattainment designation for the 1-Hour SO₂ NAAQS, for two (2) areas in Puerto Rico; including several wards, in different counties-municipalities. The Clean Air Act (CAA), directs areas designated as non-attainment to submit the Nonattainment Sulfur Dioxide State Implementation Plan (SIP) within 18 months of the effective date of the designation.

The areas in Puerto Rico that are classified/designated as nonattainment by USEPA, for the 1-hour SO₂ NAAQS are: San Juan (Including wards in San Juan, Bayamón, Guaynabo, Toa Baja and Cataño) and the Guayama-Salinas. The USEPA TSD, contains detailed information about the areas in Puerto Rico that are part of the Round 3 designation process, and the technical data submitted by the PRDNER, as part of the 1-hour SO₂ designation.

On October 8, 2020, the USEPA found that Puerto Rico, among other states or territories, failed to submit a complete SIP showing how their respective areas will address nonattainment of the 2010 1-hour primary SO₂ NAAQS.

These findings of failure to submit attainment plans for the 2010 SO₂ NAAQS, establish a 24-month deadline for USEPA to either approve SIPs for the affected areas or finalize Federal Implementation Plans (FIPs), that address attainment in each area. PRDNER have been working diligently on this schedule submittal and the attainment modeling demonstration protocol is part of the Nonattainment Sulfur Dioxide State Implementation Plan.

As required by the federal regulations and the failure to submit notice, PRDNER must have to submit the State Implementation Plan for the 1-hour SO₂ NAAQS, demonstrating attainment with the 2010 SO₂ NAAQS. This plan must include dispersion modeling with the recommended SO₂ emissions controls and measures that provides attainment of the 1 - hour SO₂ NAAQS.

2.0 Introduction

PRDNER has been working to find strategies of compliance with the 1- hour SO₂ NAAQS in the nonattainment areas of San Juan and Guayama-Salinas. The previous attainment strategies presented in the modeling protocol, included the PREPAS's emission unit fuel conversion to Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG). As part of the SO₂ SIP process, the modeling protocol was submitted to comment period and public hearing. The Puerto Rico Energy Board (PREB) submitted comments during the public hearing, establishing that the fuel conversion to LNG was not in agreement with the Puerto Rico Integrated Resource Plan (IRP)³. PREB also indicated that this attainment strategy must be revised and changed, according to the recommendations presented in the IRP.

After the 1- hour SO₂ Public Hearing, PRDNER held meetings with PREB and the Financial Oversight and Management Board (FOMB). The recommendation presented to PRDNER during these meetings was to follow the IRP integration of renewable energy sources, and the proposed emission unit retirements in the PREPA fleet, instead of the PREPA's emission unit conversion to LNG.

The compliance strategy presented in this revised protocol is in conformity with the IRP, that considers the emission unit retirements in the PREPA fleet, after the integration of the renewable generation to the electric grid. The generation capacity additions are renewables and battery storages resources within a five-year Action Plan period. These renewable sources will add 3750 MW to the energy grid. The IRP also considers the retirements of boilers, gas turbines and replacement of peaker units in the PREPA facilities.

PREPA is in a transition to Ultra Low Sulfur Diesel Fuel (ULSDF) for their gas turbines and combined cycle, along with the integration of the aforementioned renewable energy sources. Moreover, the changes in PREPA generation, an Attainment Ambient Monitoring Network (AAMN) is going to be establish in both nonattainment areas (6 monitors per area), and these SO₂ monitor values will help to see how are the SO₂ concentrations in the nonattainment areas and compare with the modeling results.

PREB provided PRDNER a schedule of retirements for the PREPA steam generating units, based on the integration of the renewable energy to the system. According to PREB, once the renewable energy projects start, the older emission units in PREPA fleet will be retired or replaced by this new generation. According to PREB/IRP retirement schedule, due to the integration of the renewable energy sources to the power grid, will be completed around year 2025 for San Juan area, and in 2029 for the Guayama-Salinas area.

³ Puerto Rico Integrated Resource Plan 2018-2019, Draft for the Review of the Puerto Rico Energy Bureau. Puerto Rico Power Electric Authority. June 2019.

PRDNER presents in this protocol, the attainment modeling for the Puerto Rico 1- Hour SO₂ Nonattainment Area State Implementation-IRP. The modeling scenario considers the PREPA emission unit retirements once the renewable energy will be added to the power grid, and the new PREPA's potential SO₂ emissions that will provide attainment with the 1-hour SO₂ NAAQS in the nonattainment areas.

The modeling protocol is based on the information presented in the IRP, and the comments submitted by PREB during the public hearing period, about the PREPA's emission unit retirements due to the integration of renewable energy. See the Appendix for the PREB/IRP schedule, with the PREPA's emission unit retirements.

3.0 Area Designation and Site Location

The two (2) nonattainment areas in Puerto Rico for the 1-hour SO₂ NAAQS are San Juan and Guayama-Salinas. The San Juan nonattainment area, includes the following municipalities and wards; within Cataño, (Palmas and Barrio Pueblo Wards), in Toa Baja (Palo Seco and Sabana Seca Wards), within Guaynabo (Pueblo Viejo Ward), in Bayamón (Juan Sánchez Ward) and in San Juan (San Juan Antiguo, Santurce, Hato Rey Norte and Gobernador Piñero Wards). The rest of the wards in each municipality were classified as attainment/unclassified. Refer to Figure 1.

The designation for Guayama municipality, in the Guayama-Salinas area, is attainment/unclassified. In Salinas municipality, the non-attainment areas are Aguirre and Lapa Wards. The remaining wards in Salinas were classified as attainment/unclassified. Refer to Figure 2.

The largest SO₂ sources in San Juan area are, PREPA San Juan in San Juan municipality and PREPA Palo Seco in Toa Baja. In Guayama -Salinas area, the significant SO₂ emissions comes from PREPA Aguirre, and this facility is located in Salinas municipality. See Baseline Emission Inventory 2014⁴ for more information about SO₂ emissions.

The other SO₂ sources in San Juan area are: Bacardi, Edelcar and other minor sources, and Applied Energy System (AES) and other minor sources in Guayama-Salinas area. Previously modeling analysis showed that the SO₂ emissions contributions for these industries were insignificant. However, these minor sources emissions contributions will be addressed with the 1- hour SO₂ background concentration.

The San Juan area is classified as urban. The Guayama-Salinas area is classified as rural. See Appendix for information regarding the land use determination for the two nonattainment areas.

4.0 Air Quality Modeling Methodology

The dispersion model used for the analysis is the AERMOD modeling system. This model is the USEPA recommendation in the Guideline on Air Quality Models⁵ (GAQM), for the modeling of the 1-hour SO₂ NAAQS. The AERMOD model version used by PRDNER, is the latest available or the 21112. The AERMOD default modeling options are used in the analysis.

PRDNER attainment modeling scenario in each nonattainment area is based on PREPA SO₂ potential emissions or potential to emit rate, (PTE). This PTE rate is the result of the PREPA emission unit retirements, due to the integration of renewable energy to the grid, as indicted by PREB and the IRP. The modeling scenarios use the 1- hour SO₂ certified emissions that PREPA provided PRDNER. PREPA calculated the emission rates for all the emission units that will stay operating in their facilities.

The 1- hour SO₂ SIP attainment model scenario, only includes the PREPA emission units that will stay operating in their facilities and exclude the units that will be retired, when the renewable sources are integrated to the power grid. Table 1 presents the emission units that will be retired, the units that stay operating in all PREPA facilities, and the modeled PTE emission rate.

The model for San Juan area includes the allowable emissions of PREPA San Juan and PREPA Palo Seco in the same run, due to the proximity of each plant. The model for Guayama-Salinas area, only considers the allowable emissions for PREPA Aguirre. The contribution to the 1-hour SO₂ emissions, from nearby sources in both nonattainment areas, is represented by the 1-hour SO₂ background concentration.

4.1 Model Parameters

The AERMOD parameters used in the analysis were the default options, including building downwash for all PREPA plants. PREPA submitted PRDNER the height, width and length of the buildings in each facility, along with maps identifying the structures. PREPA also submitted the BPIP Prime output model data to be used in the 1- hour SO₂ attainment model in San Juan and Guayama-Salinas areas. PRDNER used this BPIP data for PREPA San Juan, Palo Seco and Aguirre.

The emission units stack parameters data including the updated coordinates, was submitted and revised by PREPA. The model input files were prepared using this updated stack parameters data and the corresponding parameters using Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) in emission unit SJ5/6 or Ultra Low Sulfur Diesel (ULSD), in the gas turbines emission units.

⁵40CFR Part 51. Guideline on Air Quality Models. Environmental Protection Agency. January 2017.

In the case of PREPA SJ 5/6, the unit is dual fuel LNG/ULSD. The LNG emissions were used in the attainment model scenario, because the emissions are higher than using ULSD. The PREPA's gas turbines in Palo Seco and Aguirre were modeled using ULSD.

The San Juan area was modeled as urban, based on the land use. Guayama-Salinas area was classified as rural, according to its land use. See Appendix for modeling parameters information, revised and updated by PREPA.

4.2 Emission Data

PRDNER uses allowable SO₂ emissions or PTE rate, in the AERMOD attainment dispersion model for the 1-hour SO₂ SIP. According with the USEPA modeling guidelines, the recommendation is to use one year of onsite meteorological data and the maximum allowable emission limit or PTE rate, for the attainment modeling demonstration.

PRDNER use 1- hour SO₂ potential emission rate that provided by PREPA and modeled the emission units that will stay operating, according to the PREB/IRP retirement schedule. The Table 1 presents the SO₂ allowable emissions, and the emission units used by PRDNER in the attainment dispersion model. See Appendix for the SO₂ emission data, emission factors used and calculation, certified by PREPA.

PRDNER did not include start-up or shut-down emissions as part of the modeling since they are infrequent (2-3 times a year). These infrequent intermittent emissions would be negligible compared to the normal unit operations. Please see Appendix (PREPA's Startups/Shutdown Justification/ PREPA's Back up Fuel Oil Justification) for additional information.

Notes: SO₂ allowable emissions, from PREPA certified emission data. Emissions calculation are in the Appendix. According to PREPA comments, FT8 Mobile Pack 1,2,3 are dual fuel capable and may burn LNG in the future.

*SJ5/6 are dual fuel ULSD/LNG but for the attainment model the LNG scenario was considered because the PTE rate is higher than using ULSD.

4.3 Receptor Grid

PRDNER use a coarse and refined receptor grid for the modeling analysis that are described below. An additional receptor grid was used to determine fence line concentrations. The coarse grid is used to determine the maximum 1-hour SO₂ concentrations and the extension of the area of significant impact, or the area where the model predicts violations of the 1-hour SO₂ NAAQS. The refined grid is denser and covers the area where the previous model predicts the 1-hour SO₂ maximum concentration.

In San Juan area, the first receptor grid of 250 meters covers places with violating receptors. There are receptors over the water and although monitoring of the NAAQS is not feasible there, it shows the extent of the significant impact area. There are two refined grids of 50 meters in San Juan area, one that covers the maximum 1-hour SO₂ concentration in PREPA Palo Seco and other over the PREPA San Juan area. These refined receptor grids show the location of the 1-hour SO₂ maximum impact concentration. Discrete receptors were placed over PREPA San Juan and PREPA Palo Seco fence lines.

Similar receptor grids are used in Guayama-Salinas area. A grid of 1000 meters spacing, includes the areas where the designation model predicted concentrations are over the 1-hour SO₂ NAAQS. The grid is 1000 meters spacing, due to the extent of the significant impact area for the PREPA Aguirre previous modeling results. This grid covers up to 50 kilometers from the source. The 50 meters refined grids covers the area where the model predict the 1-hour SO₂ maximum concentration. One of the 50 meters grid is over the PREPA Aguirre facility and the other is approximately 5 miles northwest. Another 250 meters grid is placed over the facility area. Discrete receptors were placed over PREPA Aguirre fence line.

The receptor grid is processed using AERMAP terrain processor, and the terrain elevations were extracted using DEM maps Version 7.5_min⁶. The AERMAP processing files are in the Appendix and electronic files will be included with this document. The Figures 3 and 4, shows the receptor grids for San Juan and Guayama-Salinas area and their coordinates of origin, respectively.

For the receptor grids of 50 meters in PREPA Aguirre, the southwest corner is 791500/1986000 meters and the northeast corner 794000/1988500 meters and the other grid is southwest corner 782500/1992000 and northeast corner 784750/1994500. The 250 meters grid is southwest corner 791500/1986000 and northeast corner of 794000/1988500 meters. The grid has 8101 receptors.

4.4 Meteorological Data

The onsite meteorological data for the 1-hour SO₂ SIP model was provided by PREPA. The meteorological data was processed and confirmed by PRDNER. PREPA submitted PRDNER, meteorological data from PREPA San Juan, PREPA Palo Seco and PREPA Aguirre stations. The data from PREPA San Juan is from 2013 and in the case of PREPA Aguirre, the data is from years 2014-2016.

According to PREPA/Sonoma Technology met data notes, the data have a capture of 99% and was collected onsite. They also indicated that the met data was processed using AERMET, with the Adj_U* option, Upper Air data from San Juan Met Station and AERSURFACE wasn't used during the processing. The EPA designation method was used instead of AERSURFACE, which uses Alaska method: ADEC Guidance re AERMET Geometric Means How to Calculate the Geometric Mean Bowen Ratio and the Inverse-Distance Weighted Geometric Mean Surface Roughness (2009).

PRDNER revised the meteorological data, including the quality assurance data, and found the data as of good quality. Preliminary discussions with USEPA during the development of the modeling protocol and dispersion modeling analysis, determined PREPA's onsite met data was mostly acceptable for the analysis with the exception of temperature data, as discussed in the Appendix.

On January 27, 2021 USEPA sent a list of comments that included questions regarding the PREPA meteorological data. USEPA, PREPA and PRDNER discussed several aspects of the PREPA meteorological data during the SO₂ SIP technical calls from January through June 2021. The aspects included QA/QC of the data, tower location and instruments used. On June, 2021 during the USEPA/PREPA/PRDNER technical calls and several email communications regarding the temperature data, USEPA established that PREPA meteorological data was acceptable with the exception of the temperature data, and that the temperature of the National Weather Service San Juan Station should be used in San Juan and Aguirre instead. See Appendix San Juan and Aguirre Met Data Reports for additional information.

Another comment sent on March 10, 2022 to PRDNER, USEPA asked about the date for the switch of the wind sensor in the Guayama monitor. This new sensor (05103) has a higher wind threshold than the older sensor. To address this, USEPA recommended PRDNER to make two AERMET runs, one with the older sensor parameters and another with the new one. PRDNER processed the Guayama 2014-2016 meteorological data using this recommendation, and used the concatenated files for the final AERMOD run in Guayama-Salinas nonattainment area. More information regarding the Guayama met data processing is in the meteorology report on the Appendix.

PRDNER reprocess the data using AERMET 21112 and AERSURFACE 20060. PRDNER used the reprocess met data files for the 1- hour SO₂ attainment model. AERSURFACE Input/Output files for both nonattainment areas, and the characteristics used during the processing are on the meteorological report, see Appendix. Information about the QA/QC of the meteorological data is also in the Appendix.

In San Juan area, PRDNER used the met data from San Juan, year 2013. PREPA only have one year of qualified assured onsite data for the San Juan area, see Appendix for complete justification of this case. In the Guayama -Salinas area, PRDNER use three years of Aguirre met data, 2014-2016. Figures 5 and 6 shows the location of the met stations from San Juan and Guayama-Salinas area, respectively. Figures 7 and 8 presents wind roses related with the meteorological data.

4.5 Background Concentration

The SO₂ background concentration is a Tier 1 approach or based on a monitored design value. The design value is from the SO₂ monitor at Guayama, AQS-72-057-009. This monitor is the most representative for the background concentration, in both nonattainment areas. Figure 9 shows the location of the Guayama SO₂ monitor.

The design value is from the years 2007-2009 and is the recommended by PRDNER, because the monitoring data is complete and representative of the nonattainment areas. The concentration is 47 ug/m³ or 18 ppb, and this value will be added to the AERMOD model result, or the highest four highest (H4H).

PRDNER evaluated the SO₂ concentrations in the nonattainment areas and there is not a considerable growth during the past several years. Figure 10 and 11 shows the SO₂ actual emissions (TPY) in each nonattainment area from 2007-2020. This monitor in Guayama is not impacted by the PREPA facility emissions which prevent the double counting of it. This is the most representative air quality monitor data that PRDNER have and reached the completeness of the data for each year of sampling, which is a quality requirement for the air monitoring data. PRDNER has other SO₂ monitors in the island but all of them are impacted somehow by the PREPA facilities emissions.

On a December 1, 2021 call, USEPA indicated it was acceptable to use this data but made a recommendation for the year 2007. USEPA mentioned that monitoring data for 2007 have some missing values during the second quarter of the data and made a recommendation for this year. PRDNER revised the data and followed the USEPA recommendation, using for the 2007 year, the maximum daily value of 36 ppb, instead of the 99th percentile concentration of 6 ppb. This recommendation covers the USEPA concerns about the 2007 monitoring data, adding conservatism to the background concentration.

The air quality monitoring data is in the Appendix.

Land Use

The land use analysis for San Juan and Guayama-Salinas nonattainment areas are presented below. The determination of the land use in both cases were using the Auer technique. To characterize the land use in San Juan and Guayama, a 3 km radius around PREPA San Juan and PREPA Aguirre were analyzed, using the land qualification/classification data provided by the Puerto Rico Planning Board through their interactive website <https://gis.jp.pr.gov/mipr/>. This website presents the land classification (clasificación in Spanish) and the qualification (calificación in Spanish) for the island of Puerto Rico. The land qualification means what is the intended use of any land parcel or area in the island, and the classification refers to the type of soil or terrain; urban soil, protected, water or rural/agricultural, etc. A description of the qualification/classification are included in the tables below for both nonattainment areas.

DNER prepared two maps including the 3 Km area around PREPA San Juan and PREPA Guayama. Because the qualification data of the whole 3 Km radius area is not completely visible in the map, a magnify smaller portions of the area were presented where the qualification data was visible. This procedure was done to demonstrate the land use type that account for 50% or more in both nonattainment areas.

In the case of San Juan area, the land use that account for more than 50% is urban. The qualification and classification of the 3 Km radius area is more than 50% industrial, Commercial and Residential with Urban Soil. The land use classification for rustic soil (qualification of PR, CR, CPN, etc.) is less than 50 %, see maps and Table 1.

In the case of Guayama-Salinas nonattainment area, the land use that account for more than 50% is rural, the qualification and classification of the 3 Km radius areas are mostly rural general, agricultural and rustic soil. The urban classification for the Guayama nonattainment area (qualification of C-1, R-1, I-P, etc.) is less than 50%, see Table 2 and maps included.

- Please clarify why the emission factors for units 5&6 in San Juan are the same as previous permit since the facility is converting to gas.

See PREPA's comment and tables below.

San Juan 5 & 6 emission rates after the natural gas dual fuel conversion remains similar as the previous permit as the fuel sulfur content limit continues to be .05 %/wt for diesel. Additional emission rates, shown in the table below, considers and reflect the rates when combusting Natural Gas and alternative or projected fuel sulfur content of .0015 %/wt for ULSD combustion.

PREPA's Startups/Shutdown Justification

- Please address emissions from startup/shutdown and any emergency and intermittent uses of the sources.

SO₂ emission factors for PREPA combustion turbines are based on the sulfur content of the fuel being used. PREPA does not have SO₂ control equipment that would affect SO₂ emission factors any differently during any operational condition. Therefore, SO₂ emission factors for startups/shutdowns or intermittent emissions are the same as the SO₂ emission factors for normal turbine operations.

According to the 2016 SO₂ 1-hour NAAQS Modeling TAD and 2011 NO₂ 1-hour EPA Appendix W clarification memo guidance, the most appropriate data to use in comparison with the 1-hour standards are those emission scenarios that are continuous or frequent enough to contribute significantly to the annual distribution of maximum daily 1-hour concentrations. The 1-hour SO₂ standard is based on the 99th percentile maximum daily concentration during the year, or 'high-fourth-high' (H4H) concentration. PREPA baseload unit programmed startups and shutdowns occur 2 to 3 times a year as required by maintenance and environmental outages, similarly for peaker combustion turbines.

In the NO₂ 1-hour EPA clarification guidance, there is discussion regarding the applicability of intermittent emissions scenarios in certain operational scenarios. EPA guidance for base-load facilities is to model impacts from intermittent emissions based on an annual average hourly intermittent emission rate (e.g. 3 starts a year divided by 8760 hours in a year) because startups and shutdowns are infrequent during the year, rather than assuming a continuous intermittent hourly emissions rate for every hour of the year. According to the guidance, these infrequent intermittent emission scenarios would not contribute to the form of the standard as those periods are negligible when compared to the universe of unit operating hours with higher SO₂ hourly emission rates for base load operation. Therefore, the normal operational conditions at PREPA are the most frequent controlling emission scenario when addressing for the form of the SO₂ 1-hour standard and coinciding worst-case meteorological conditions.

PREPA San Juan and Palo Seco Stack Parameters Drone Measurements

San Juan and Palo Seco Generation Plant Measurement Project

Report Compiled by Geodrone Inc. for Puerto Rico Electrical Power Authority

Prepared upon request of: Jose Santos (jose.santos@prepa.com)

Project Synopsis

To determine and/or verify key dimensions at San Juan and Palo Seco generation plants, aerial photographs were taken by sUAS and used in various photogrammetry workflows to estimate 3D measurements of the difficult to reach areas. The results were then compared to some known dimensions in order to estimate possible error/accuracy inherent in the approach. After verifying the data against these known dimensions, there was enough confidence in the data set to provide estimated values for unknown dimensions.

About the Company

Geodrone began offering commercial sUAS services in 2016, using photogrammetry to measure terrain for the construction and quarry industry, generating maps, DEMs, and other GIS data for clients to use as actionable information in project resource management. In September 2017, hurricane Irma and then Maria swept Puerto Rico and damaged a large part of electrical infrastructure on the island. PREPA reached out for help, and Geodrone incorporated and began working with PREPA, developing workflows for sUAS transmission line inspections, and inspected most of the high voltage transmission lines in PR. After restoration was nearing completion, Geodrone Inc. began also collecting data and generating maps and other GIS data for PREPA to use in FEMA Project Worksheets.

Data Collection

On May 26th 2021, photos and videos were taken of San Juan and Palo Seco Generation Plants with a sUAS. The sUAS used was a DJI Phantom 4 Pro V2.0 with its integrated 20MP camera and GPS IMU. FAA clearance was received for these flights, however the maximum altitude allowed of 200ft at the Palo Seco site precluded the capturing of images from above the taller 3-1, 3-2, 4-1, and 4-2 stacks. 577 images and 3 videos were taken combined between both sites.

Data Processing and Analysis Overview

The collected imagery was processed with photogrammetry programs, mainly DroneDeploy. Photogrammetry is the process of locating points in 3D by measuring the relative change of distance between them among many images taken from different vantage points. Computer photogrammetry programs automate this process of finding and measuring hundreds of thousands of points across hundreds of images to generate a 3D point cloud of the photographed area.

Data Validation

In order to gauge practical accuracy in measured dimensions in the data sets, certain measurements were taken which could be compared directly to their known values as designed/constructed. These known values and their locations were provided by PREPA in the form of design documentation. The following are tables showing the results of this analysis.

San Juan Units 7 and 8 Vertical Distances Relative to Top of Chimney
Surface	Measured Distance (ft)	Designed Distance (ft)	Variance (ft)	% Variation
First Platform	14.96	15	-0.04	-0.27%
Second Platform	81.09	80.5	0.59	0.73%
Third Platform	111.42	112.83	-1.41	-1.27%

Palo Seco Stacks 1 and 2
Measurement	Measured Distance (ft)	Designed Distance (ft)	Variance (ft)	% Variation
Stack 1 Top to First Platform	47.81	46.8	1.01	2.16%
Stack 1 Outer Diameter	11.45	11.31	0.14	1.24%
Stack 2 Top to First Platform	47.36	46.8	0.56	1.20%

Conclusions of Validation Test

The validation tests showed promising results, with the largest variation between designed and measured values being 2.16%, and the average at about 1.1%. This relatively low variance gives confidence to other measurements taken from the two data sets using the same methods.

Measurement Methods

Measurements of chimney diameters for San Juan were conducted using three different methods in order to mitigate any unforeseen error sources related to any individual method. The three measurement methods are listed and explained below. Due to low maximum altitude restrictions at the site, Palo Seco could only be measured via the third method (Method C). Also, stacks 3-1, 3-2, 4-1, and 4-2 have larger expected potential errors due to their height extending slightly above max altitude, precluding any overhead images being captured for the dataset.

Method A:

A direct measurement was taken of the diameter of the mouth of the chimney using the generated orthographic. Care was taken to ensure an actual diameter was measured vs accidentally measuring a chord by not passing through the center of the circle, which would artificially lower the measurement.

Method B:

The diameter of the circle was calculated by first measuring the entire area of the chimney outlet in the ortho, and then dividing it by pi, square rooting it, and finally multiplying by 2 to arrive at a diameter. This method hopefully offsets potential chord error in Method A and may also lower the error from apparent elliptical distortion of the chimney in the photos and ortho.

Method C:

The diameter of the chimney was measured in 3d space using the generated point cloud.

Although different methods, these measurements are all based on the same imagery collected and are prone to any artifacts or distortion of that imagery (such as heat mirage from exhaust), and may have affected the methods in equal ways.

Measurement Results

The following table of measurements, diameter is labeled A, B, and C following which of the methods described in the previous section was used. The column labeled L. Error (in) is the difference between the highest and lowest value of the three methods converted to inches. Average is the average of the three. Estimated height to nearest "floor" like plane is listed as Est. Height. For San Juan, ASL reference was given and so estimated ASL elevation was calculated as well.

PREPA Palo Seco and Aguirre Gas Turbines Revision of the Stack Diameter

I. Requests Regarding Appendix 2: Stack Parameter Data

Stack Parameter Data Request No. 1

Calculate the equivalent diameter for all non-circular stacks included in the document.

PREPA Response to Request No. 1:

In response to this request, PREPA is providing a revised version of Appendix 2, with a new Column G ("Point Source Equivalent Circular Stack Diameter (ft)") that provides the requested stack diameter information. The rest of Appendix 2 contains the same information that was previously provided to DNER on September 15, 2020.

PREPA reiterates that although it is providing the requested stack parameters for Palo Seco GT 2-2, Palo Seco GT 3-1, and Palo Seco GT 3-2, these units are no longer being operated by PREPA. Accordingly, emissions from these units should not be included in SO₂ emissions projections.

Stack Parameter Data Request No. 2

In case of PREPA Aguirre, Palo Seco and Costa Sur gas turbines (GT's), clarify what PREPA means with two sections diameter, and confirm that is only one stack.

PREPA Response to Request No. 2:

For these gas turbines, there is only one stack. There is a steel divider in the middle of each rectangular stack exit tip, creating two sections. See below for an example picture of one of the Palo Seco gas turbine stacks. Rectangular stacks with two sections can be treated as one stack tip for modeling. Accordingly, in calculating the equivalent diameter for these stacks in its Response to Request No. 1, above, PREPA treated the two sections as one stack, and utilized the total area of both sections of the stack in determining the equivalent circular diameter.

PREPA notes:

* Parameters, as shown on table, correspond to design data for such units. Stack dimensions from satellite.

For the Aguirre combined cycle units, the table provides stack parameters for each of the units in both the simple cycle and combined cycle operating modes. While each operating mode has its own stack (i.e., there is one stack used for combined cycle operations, and a separate stack used for simple cycle operations), only one mode can be operating at any given time and only one of the two stacks is used at a time.

PREPA Information About San Juan Met Data

- According to Appendix W, Section 8.4.2e, if more than 1 year of site-specific meteorological data is available for the San Juan area, please include it in the analysis or provide a justification if otherwise.

Onsite meteorological data at San Juan for 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016 were quality assured by PREPA and checked for data completeness. Only 2013 had sufficient data capture for modeling, which is 90% data completeness per quarter (Appendix W). PREPA provided a meteorological data quality assurance and quality control procedure document to DNER in April 2021. The document demonstrated station routine inspection and maintenance, calibration, and the data acquisition and verification process. It was determined that the 2013 onsite met data met completeness and quality assurance guidelines for use in regulatory modeling.

In the future, meteorological instruments (wind, temperature, solar radiation) should be considered for installation in conjunction with new air quality monitoring instruments at monitoring stations for use in future monitoring and modeling studies.

DNER Aguirre Met Data and Land Use Report

AERMET and AERSURFACE Processing for PREPA Aguirre SO₂ State Implementation Plan

The State Implementation Plan (SIP) for SO₂ for PREPA Aguirre was developed thanks to the availability of onsite and National Weather Service meteorological data as well as digital land cover data for Puerto Rico. This is the first time to apply the AERSURFACE tool to calculate the surface characteristics values needed to run AERMET. The AERSURFACE tool automatically helps calculate the surface characteristics values faster than hand-made calculations and provides more certainty. The Sulfur Dioxide SIP meteorological data consists of 3-year surface hourly National Weather Service data (NWS) and 3-year hourly PREPA Aguirre meteorological onsite data. Radiosonde data, 1-minute and 5-minute wind data were also processed and merged from the year 2014 to 2016. The digital land cover data used for Puerto Rico is from the National Land Cover Database year 2001 (NLCD 2001).

1.0 Onsite Meteorological Data

Onsite meteorological data from the PREPA Aguirre tower located within the Aguirre Power Plant area will be used for SO₂ modeling. According to Puerto Rico Electric Power Authority personnel the tower is located near 17.953° north, 66.230° west. The tower was installed on October 2013 at the top of an administrative building. The onsite meteorological data submitted include wind speed and direction at 24.38-meter height above ground level, and temperature data at 13.72-meter height above ground level. The temperature sensor is located at 3.1 meters above the roof of the facility therefore, temperature data was discarded due to the possible influence of other radiation sources. The discarded temperature data was substituted with temperature data from the National Weather Service (NWS). The wind measurements were at 13.7 meters above the roof were accepted due that the building aerodynamic wake could not affect significantly at that level (see page 3-4, section 3.2.1.2 of EPA's reference guide Meteorological Monitoring Guidance for Regulatory Modeling Applications). The wind monitors used during the meteorological sampling were the Young 05305-5 and the Young 05103-5. The Young wind monitor 05305 have the sensor specifications such as thresholds, distant constant, delay distance and damping ratios as recommended by the guidelines. However, on April 28, 2016, the new wind monitor model 05103 was installed replacing the model 05305. The Young wind monitor 05103 have sensors specifications a bit off the recommended specifications by the guidelines. In this case, EPA recommended two separated runs to the onsite data using the different thresholds of both sensors. Therefore, two separated runs were done to the onsite data. For the first run with a threshold of 0.5 m/s was used from January 2014 to April 27, 2016 and a second run with a threshold of 1.0 m/s was used from April 28, 2016 to December 31, 2016. The resulting output of both files were combined to get a complete 2014 to 2016 onsite data. The Aguirre onsite data did not measure any turbulence.

Maintenance procedures, sensor calibrations are detailed on Appendix A and B of the document Summary of Historical Onsite Meteorological Monitoring Station Quality Assurance and Quality Control Procedures at the San Juan and Aguirre Power Plants submitted by the Puerto Rico Electric Power Authority.

A first quality assessment and acceptance criteria of the data showed a percent of acceptance above 98.1% with 26,304 observations for all wind speed and direction (above 90% of data capture for every quarter of the period). The raw missing hours were manipulated by filling in missing flags only.

2.0 National Weather Service Meteorological Data

The 2014 to 2016 San Juan National Weather Service's (NWS) surface and radiosonde data together with the 1-minute and 5-minute ASOS wind data are enough for our meteorological data processing. The NWS 1-minute and 5-minute ASOS wind data were obtained digitally from the National Climatic Data Center's FTP server. The upper air data was obtained from the NOAA/ESRL Radiosonde Database's website in a FSL format. The 2014 to 2016 upper data obtained contains all levels requested at both times 00z and 12z. The NWS surface data obtained from the NCDL's FTP server was in ISHD format. AERMET version 21112 was used from STAGE 1 thru STAGE 3 for the meteorological processing.

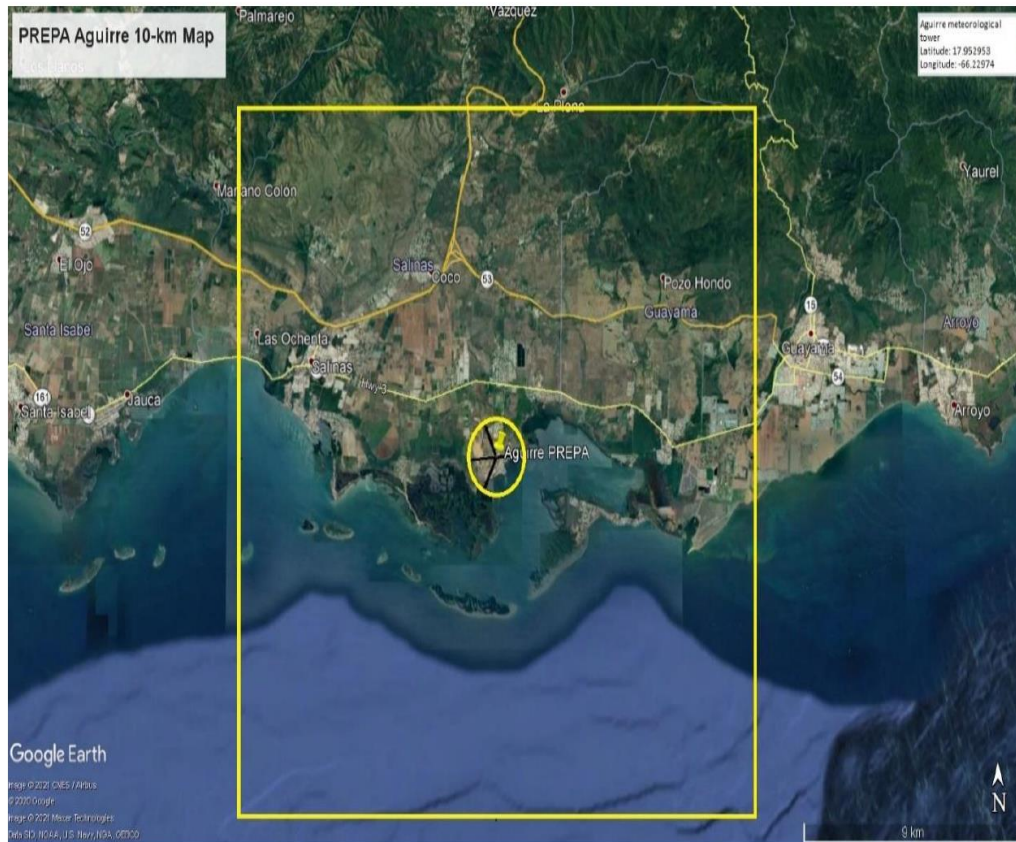

3.0 AERMET Surface Characteristics

In stage 3 of AERMET are required the surface characteristics values for a first characteristic site (PREPA Aguirre site) and a second characteristics site (NWS site). The surface characteristics values referred to are albedo, Bowen ratio and the surface roughness length. The surface characteristics values for PREPA Aguirre and the NWS sites were computed by using the AERSURFACE tool version 20060. A 2-km diameter circular area centered from the Aguirre meteorological tower location was done to analyze the land cover surrounding the tower to calculate the surface roughness length. Circular sectors were subjectively defined based on a simple identification of land used categories such as: mixed land cover*, water bodies, residential, industrial complex, commercial, buildings and airport environment. The area of each land used category were also considered in the circular sectors analysis. Land used categories were identified using the application Google Earth. With this procedure, a total of 4 circular sectors were identified and later incorporated into the stage 3 of AERMET (see figure 3.1 and table 4.1). Also, a 10 km by 10 km area around the onsite tower was delimited to compute the Bowen ratio and albedo values (see figure 3.2).

A similar procedure was used to define the 1-km radius circular sectors and to delimit a 10 km by 10 km area for the NWS site. The above procedure resulted in 4 circular sectors that later were incorporated into the stage 3 of AERMET (see figures 3.3, 3.4 and table 4.2).

Figure 3.4 San Juan NWS 10 km x 10 km area map. The 2-km diameter circular area of figure 3.3 is included.

4.0 AERSURFACE

A land cover file of year 2001 (NLCD 2001) for Puerto Rico was obtained from the interactive viewer of the Multi-Resolution Land Characteristics Consortium's (MRLC) website. Canopy and Impervious files from year 2001 were also included to get a complete calculations of albedo, Bowen ratio and surface roughness length for both Aguirre and the NWS sites. The 1-km circular sectors defined above of each site were incorporated into the AERSURFACE run. Conservative climatic conditions for both characteristics sites includes average moisture, non-arid and midsummer values of surface, Bowen and albedo for each class name (land cover) from 1 thru 12 months.

An additional command is needed for the AERSURFACE to run appropriate surface characteristic values; the Airport vs.

Non-Airport flag. AERSURFACE was run with non-airport surface roughness values for all circular sectors at the Aguirre tower due to its non-airport environment and diverse land category (see Table 4.1). However, AERSURFACE was run for the NWS site with airport surface roughness values except for two circular sectors. One of the circular sectors was modified due to a multiple floor parking lot and building structures located within the airport itself (see table 4.2).

Table 4.1 AERSURFACE circular sectors and land category within 1-km radius for PREPA Aguirre onsite tower.

Number of sectors	Circular sector (degrees)	Airport /Non-airport flag	Land category
1	334-85	Non-Airport	Mixed land cover, Residential.
2	85-208	Non-Airport	Water body, industrial complex.
3	208-266	Non-Airport	Mixed land cover, industrial complex.
4	266-334	Non-Airport	Mixed land cover.

3	67-97	Airport	Airport environment.
4	97-278	Non-Airport	Residential and commercial, Building, Mixed land cover, water body.

5.0 AERMET

Once the surface characteristics are determined for the primary and secondary sites, then these values were inserted with their respective circular sectors into the STAGE 3 of AERMET processing. The STAGE 3 is where boundary layers are estimated by using processing commands. The processing methods and parameters used for Aguirre and the NWS were: REFLEVEL SUBNWS, STABLEBL ADJ_U*, WIND_DIR RANDOM and CCVR SUB_CC.

Note:

*Mixed land cover was subjectively defined as various land categories that cannot be separated by a circular sector and are scattered within the same sector.

AERMET and AERSURFACE Processing for PREPA San Juan SO₂ State Implementation Plan

The State Implementation Plan (SIP) for SO₂ for PREPA San Juan was developed thanks to the availability of onsite and National Weather Service meteorological data as well as digital land cover data for Puerto Rico. The Sulfur Dioxide SIP meteorological data consists of 1-year surface hourly National Weather Service data (NWS) and 1-year hourly PREPA San Juan meteorological onsite data. The Young wind monitor 05305 have the sensor specifications such as thresholds, distant constants, delay distance and damping ratios as recommended by the guidelines. The wind data will be used for modeling (see addendum on Wind Monitor Sensors). The onsite data did not measure any turbulence data.

Maintenance procedures, sensor calibrations are detailed on Appendix A and B of the document Summary of Historical Onsite Meteorological Monitoring Station Quality Assurance and Quality Control Procedures at the San Juan and Aguirre Power Plants submitted by the Puerto Rico Electric Power Authority.

A first quality assessment and acceptance criteria of the data showed a percent of acceptance above 97.0% with 8,760 observations for all wind speed and direction (above 90% of data capture for every quarter of the period). GOVERNMENT OF PUERTO RICO
Puerto Rico Electric Power Authority

Summary of Historical Onsite Meteorological Monitoring Station Quality Assurance and Quality Control Procedures at the San Juan and Aguirre Power Plants

Mr. Javier Pietri
Principal Supervisor, Projections and Statistics Department
Puerto Rico Electric Power Authority
April 6, 2021

I. Introduction

The Puerto Rico Electric Power Authority (PREPA) operates meteorological monitoring stations located onsite at several of its power stations; I am responsible for these monitoring stations. To support the sulfur dioxide (SO₂) state implementation plan (SIP) air quality modeling, I was asked to gather the records on the historical meteorological data and quality assurance/quality control (QA/QC) procedures for the monitoring stations located at the San Juan and Aguirre power stations. The information provided herein focuses on the meteorological data shared with and used by the Puerto Rico Department of Natural and Environmental Resources (PRDNER) for preliminary SO₂ SIP modeling which included data collected at the San Juan Power Plant in 2013 and data collected at the Aguirre Power Plant in 2014, 2015, and 2016.

PREPA has QA/QC procedures in place to ensure that the meteorological monitoring equipment is working properly and to verify the accuracy and reliability of the data generated by the San Juan and Aguirre meteorological monitoring sites. PREPA's procedures for site selection, data flow, and monitor/sensor inspections are in accordance with United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) recommendations (U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, 2000). Data completeness for the four years of data identified above is greater than 99%.

II. Meteorological Monitoring Station Information and Quality Assurance and Quality Control Procedures

PREPA currently operates meteorological monitoring stations located at the San Juan and Aguirre Power Plants. These meteorological monitoring stations were installed in February 2010 and October 2013 (respectively). The meteorological data collected at these monitoring stations are used by PREPA for plant operations. Prior to the installation of monitoring stations at San Juan and Aguirre, PREPA used online weather data from offsite weather stations, which were manually entered into an internal recordkeeping system.

Meteorological Monitoring Station Administration and Management

The meteorological monitoring stations were installed by PREPA's Projections and Statistics Department. They are currently supervised by the Projections and Statistics Department Manager and operated and maintained by the department Principal Supervisor (with assistance from the communications department).

Meteorological Monitoring Station Locations

The meteorological monitoring stations are located onsite at each power plant, on top of facility administrative buildings. Figure 2 shows photographs of the monitors at San Juan (A) and Aguirre (B) from a site visit conducted in October 2018. Table 1 lists both the absolute and relative elevation (height) for both stations.

Table 1. Meteorological monitoring station elevation (height) parameters.

Station	Vane Level (m)	Ground Level (m)	Vane Roof Level (m)	Sensor Level (m)	Ground Level (m)	Sensor Roof Level (m)
San Juan	22.9	12.2	13.7	3.1
Aguirre	24.4	13.7	13.7	3.1

Meteorological Monitoring Station Inspection and Maintenance Procedures

The two onsite meteorological monitoring stations at the San Juan and Aguirre Power Plants were installed in February 2010 and October 2013, respectively. Periodically, the stations undergo inspection and maintenance, and a record is kept documenting any equipment replacement, sensor verification, or cleaning. Four maintenance entries were documented for the Aguirre meteorological monitoring station (between August 13, 2014 and April 28, 2016), and nine were documented for the San Juan meteorological monitoring station (between March 12, 2013 and August 11, 2016). On a periodic basis, the maintenance includes verifying and cleaning the wind, temperature, relative humidity, solar radiation, barometric pressure, and precipitation sensors; replacing the blade of the wind sensor; and adjusting the wind sensor to north. A copy of the meteorological monitoring station inspection and maintenance log can be found in Appendix A.

Sensor Calibration Procedures

The meteorological monitoring stations each maintain six sensors to record meteorological conditions. Measurements are taken for wind (speed and direction), temperature, relative humidity, solar radiation, precipitation, and barometric pressure. Physical sensors for both facilities came calibrated from the respective vendor. Wind monitors are recalibrated every three years by the R.M. Young Company, and a wind sensor calibration certificate is produced and maintained onsite (see Appendix B). Documentation shows that the wind sensor at Aguirre was serviced on December 20, 2012 and again on February 3, 2015. In addition, documentation shows that the sensor at San Juan was serviced June 12, 2009, December 20, 2012, and February 3, 2015. The sensors are also checked during PREPA inspections. Copies of sensor instruction manuals are maintained at PREPA headquarters.

Data Acquisition and Management

Meteorological data from the monitors is transmitted directly over the PREPA internal communications network and stored on an OSIsoft Pi Historian cloud-based server. Before onsite monitors were installed, offsite weather data were manually entered into the same OSIsoft Pi system. Data are verified monthly by the Principal Supervisor on staff. PREPA has maintained all hourly data from the San Juan and Aguirre meteorological stations since the stations were installed.

Data Quality Assurance and Quality Control

Data obtained from the meteorological monitoring stations are compared with information from nearby stations (such as those of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) and the National Weather Service (NWS)) by an engineer or supervisor on staff at PREPA to validate the data. PREPA representatives met with the former director of Puerto Rico's office of the NWS upon installation of the San Juan meteorological monitoring station to discuss data verification. Data obtained from the onsite meteorological monitoring stations are verified monthly by a supervisor on staff at PREPA.

Wind measurements are recorded hourly over the course of the year. The total number of valid wind observations and the percent data completeness for years 2013-2016 are shown in Table 2. For 2013 at San Juan, and 2014-2016 at Aguirre, the percent of valid wind observations was well over the required 90% completeness requirement for regulatory modeling, with those years exceeding 99% completeness.

Table 2. Total number of valid wind observation measurements and percent data completeness (in parentheses) at the San Juan and Aguirre meteorological monitoring stations. Note the total number of possible observations in a year is 8,760 hours or 8,784 hours in leap years.

Station	Total Number of Valid Measurements (Percent Data Completeness)
	2013	2014	2015	2016
San Juan	8,692 (99.2%)	N/A	N/A	N/A
Aguirre	N/A	8,749 (99.8%)	8,745 (99.8%)	8,730 (99.6%)

WIND SPEED SPECIFICATION SUMMARY

Range	0 to 50 m/s (112 mph)
Sensor	20 cm diameter 4-blade helicoid propeller carbon fiber thermoplastic
Distance Constant	2.1 m (6.9 ft.) for 63% recovery
Threshold Sensitivity	0.4 m/s (0.9 mph)
Transducer	Centrally mounted stationary coil, 2K ohm nominal DC resistance
Transducer Output	AC sine wave signal induced by rotating magnet on propeller shaft. 80 mV p-p at 100 rpm. 8.0 V p-p at 10,000 rpm.
Output Frequency	3 cycles per propeller revolution (0.102 m/s per Hz)

WIND DIRECTION (AZIMUTH) SPECIFICATION SUMMARY

Range	360° mechanical, 355° electrical (5° open)
Sensor	Balanced vane, 48.3 cm (19 in) turning radius.
Damping Ratio	0.45
Delay Distance	1.2 m (3.9 ft) for 50% recovery
Threshold Sensitivity	0.5 m/s (1.0 mph) at 10° displacement 0.7 m/s (1.6 mph) at 5° displacement
Damped Natural Wavelength	4.9 m (16.1 ft)
Undamped Natural Wavelength	4.4 m (14.4 ft)
Transducer	Precision conductive plastic potentiometer, 10K ohm resistance (±20%), 0.25% linearity, life expectancy 50 million revolutions, rated 1 watt at 40°C, 0 watts at 125°C
Transducer Excitation Requirement	Regulated DC voltage, 15 VDC max
Transducer Output	Analog DC voltage proportional to azimuth angle with regulated excitation voltage applied across potentiometer.

GENERAL

Operating temperature: -50 to 50°C (-58 to 122°F)

INTRODUCTION

The Wind Monitor measures horizontal wind speed and direction. Developed for air quality applications, it is accurate, sensitive, and corrosion resistant. The main housing, nose cone, propeller, and other internal parts are injection molded U.V. stabilized plastic. The tail section is lightweight expanded polystyrene. Both the propeller and vertical shafts use stainless steel precision grade ball bearings. Bearings have shields to help exclude contamination and moisture.

Propeller rotation produces an AC sine wave signal with frequency proportional to wind speed. This AC signal is induced in a stationary coil by a six pole magnet mounted on the propeller shaft. Three complete sine wave cycles are produced for each propeller revolution.

Vane position is transmitted by a 10K ohm precision conductive plastic potentiometer which requires a regulated excitation voltage. With a constant voltage applied to the potentiometer, the output signal is an analog voltage directly proportional to azimuth angle.

The instrument mounts on standard one inch pipe, outside diameter 34 mm (1.34"). An orientation ring is provided so the instrument can be removed for maintenance and reinstalled without loss of wind direction reference. Both mounting post assembly and orientation ring are secured to the mounting pipe by stainless steel band clamps. Electrical connections are made in a junction box at the base. A variety of devices are available for signal conditioning, display, and recording of wind speed and direction.

INITIAL CHECKOUT

When the Wind Monitor is unpacked it should be checked carefully for any signs of shipping damage.

Remove the plastic nut on the propeller shaft. Install the propeller on the shaft with the serial number of the propeller facing forward (into the wind). The instrument is aligned, balanced and fully calibrated before shipment; however, it should be checked both mechanically and electrically before installation. The vane and propeller should easily rotate 360° without friction. Check vane balance by holding the instrument base so the vane surface is horizontal. It should have near neutral torque without any particular tendency to rotate. A slight imbalance will not degrade performance.

The potentiometer requires a stable DC excitation voltage. Do not exceed 15 volts. When the potentiometer wiper is in the 5° deadband region, the output signal is "floating" and may show varying or unpredictable values. To prevent false readings, signal conditioning electronics should clamp the signal to excitation or reference level when this occurs. NOTE: Young signal conditioning devices clamp the signal to excitation level. Avoid a short circuit between the azimuth signal line and either the excitation or reference lines. Although there is a 1K ohm current limiting resistor in series with the wiper for protection, damage to the potentiometer may occur if a short circuit condition exists.

Before installation, connect the instrument to an indicator as shown in the wiring diagram and check for proper wind speed and azimuth values. To check wind speed, temporarily remove the propeller and connect the shaft to an Anemometer Drive. Details appear in the CALIBRATION section of this manual.

INSTALLATION

Proper placement of the instrument is very important. Eddies from trees, buildings, or other structures can greatly influence wind speed and wind direction observations. To get meaningful data for most applications, locate the instrument well above and upwind from obstructions. As a general rule, the air flow around a structure is disturbed to twice the height of the structure upwind, six times the height downwind, and up to twice the height of the structure above ground. For some applications it may not be practical or necessary to meet these requirements.

05305-5-90(G)

FAILURE TO PROPERLY GROUND THE WIND MONITOR
MAY RESULT IN ERRONEOUS SIGNALS OR TRANSDUCER DAMAGE.

Grounding the Wind Monitor is vitally important. Without proper grounding static electrical charge can build up during certain atmospheric conditions and discharge through the transducers. This discharge can potentially cause erroneous signals or transducer failure. To direct the discharge away from the transducers, the mounting post assembly in which the transducers are mounted is made with a special antistatic plastic. Therefore it is very important that the mounting post be connected to a good earth ground. There are two ways this may be accomplished. First, the Wind Monitor may be mounted on a metal pipe which is connected to earth ground. The mounting pipe should not be painted where the Wind Monitor is mounted. Towers or masts set in concrete should be connected to one or more grounding rods. If it is difficult to ground the mounting post in this manner an alternative method should be used. Inside the junction box the terminal labeled EARTH GND is internally connected to the antistatic mounting post. This terminal should be connected to an earth ground (Refer to wiring diagram).

Initial installation is most easily done with two people; one to adjust the instrument position and the other to observe the indicating device. After initial installation, the instrument can be removed and returned to its mounting without realigning the vane since the orientation ring preserves the wind direction reference. Install the Wind Monitor following these steps:

1. MOUNT WIND MONITOR
 - a) Place orientation ring on mounting post.
Do Not tighten band clamp yet.
 - b) Place Wind Monitor on mounting post.
Do Not tighten band clamp yet.
2. CONNECT SENSOR CABLE
 - a) Slide junction box cover up.
 - b) Route cable thru strain relief opening at bottom of junction box. Secure cable by tightening packing nut.
 - c) Connect sensor cable to terminals. See wiring diagram.
 - d) Slide junction box cover down.
3. ALIGN VANE
 - a) Connect instrument to an indicator.
 - b) Choose a known wind direction reference point on the horizon.
 - c) Sighting down instrument centerline, point nose cone at reference point on horizon.
 - d) While holding vane in position, slowly turn base until indicator shows proper value.
 - e) Tighten mounting post band clamp.
 - f) Engage orientation ring indexing pin in notch at instrument base.
 - g) Tighten orientation ring band clamp.

CALIBRATION

The Wind Monitor is fully calibrated before shipment and should require no adjustments. Recalibration may be necessary after some maintenance operations. Periodic calibration checks are desirable and may be necessary where the instrument is used in programs which require auditing of sensor performance.

Accurate wind direction calibration requires a Model 18112 Vane Angle Bench Stand. Begin by connecting the instrument to a signal conditioning circuit which has some method of indicating 05305-5-90(G) azimuth value. This may be a display which shows azimuth values in angular degrees or simply a voltmeter monitoring the output. Orient the base with the junction box at 180°. Visually align the vane with the crossmarkings and observe the indicator output. If the vane position and indicator do not agree within 5°, adjust the potentiometer coupling inside the main housing. Details for making this adjustment appear in the MAINTENANCE, potentiometer replacement outline, step 7.

It is important to note that, while the sensor mechanically rotates through 360°, the full scale wind direction signal from the instrument occurs at 355°. The signal conditioning electronics must be adjusted accordingly. For example, in a circuit where 0 to 1.000 VDC represents 0° to 360°, the output must be adjusted for 0.986 VDC when the instrument is at 355°. ($355°/360° \times 1.000 \text{ volts} = 0.986 \text{ volts}$)

Wind speed calibration is determined by propeller pitch and the output characteristics of the transducer. Calibration formulas showing wind speed vs. propeller rpm and output frequency are included below. Standard accuracy is ± 0.3 m/s (0.6mph). For greater accuracy, the device must be individually calibrated in comparison with a wind speed standard. Contact the factory or your supplier to schedule a NIST (National Institute of Standards & Technology) traceable wind tunnel calibration in our facility.

To calibrate wind system electronics using a signal from the instrument, temporarily remove the propeller and connect an Anemometer Drive (18802 or equivalent) to the propeller shaft. Apply the appropriate calibration formula to the calibrating motor rpm and adjust the electronics for the proper value. For example, with the propeller shaft turning at 3600 rpm, adjust an indicator to display 18.4 meters per second. ($3600 \text{ rpm} \times 0.00512 \text{ m/s/rpm} = 18.4 \text{ m/s}$).

MAINTENANCE

Given proper care, the Wind Monitor should provide years of service. The only components likely to need replacement due to normal wear are the precision ball bearings and the wind direction potentiometer. Only a qualified instrument technician should perform the replacement. If service facilities are not available, return the instrument to the company. Refer to the drawings to become familiar with part names and locations. The asterisk * which appears in the following outlines is a reminder that maximum torque on all set screws is 80 oz-in.

POTENTIOMETER REPLACEMENT

The potentiometer has a life expectancy of fifty million revolutions. As it becomes worn, the element may begin to produce noisy signals or become nonlinear. When signal noise or non-linearity becomes unacceptable, replace the potentiometer. Refer to exploded view drawing and proceed as follows:

1. REMOVE MAIN HOUSING
 - a) Unscrew nose cone from main housing. Set o-ring aside for later use.
 - b) Gently push main housing latch.
 - c) While pushing latch, lift main housing up and remove it from vertical shaft bearing rotor.
 2. UNSOLDER TRANSDUCER WIRE
 - a) Slide junction box cover up, exposing circuit board.
 - b) Remove screws holding circuit board.
 - c) Unsolder three potentiometer wires (white, green, black), two wind speed coil wires (red, black), and earth ground wire (red) from board.
 3. REMOVE POTENTIOMETER
 - a) Loosen set screw on potentiometer coupling and remove it from potentiometer adjust thumbwheel.
 - b) Loosen set screw on potentiometer adjust thumbwheel and remove it from potentiometer shaft.
 - c) Loosen two set screws at base of transducer assembly and remove assembly from vertical shaft.
 - d) Unscrew potentiometer housing from potentiometer mounting & coil assembly.
 - e) Push potentiometer out of potentiometer mounting & coil assembly by applying firm but gentle pressure on potentiometer shaft.
 4. INSTALL NEW POTENTIOMETER
 - a) Push new potentiometer into potentiometer mounting & coil assembly.
 - b) Feed potentiometer and coil wires through hole in bottom of potentiometer housing.
 - c) Screw potentiometer housing onto potentiometer mounting & coil assembly.
 - d) Gently pull transducer wires through bottom of potentiometer housing to take up any slack. Apply a small amount of silicone sealant around hole.
 - e) Install transducer assembly on vertical shaft allowing 0.5 mm (0.020") clearance from vertical bearing. Tighten set screws* at bottom of transducer assembly.
 - f) Place potentiometer adjust thumbwheel on potentiometer shaft and tighten set screw*.
 - g) Place potentiometer coupling on potentiometer adjust thumbwheel. Do Not tighten set screw yet.
 5. RECONNECT TRANSDUCER WIRES
 - a) Using needle-nose pliers or a paper clip bent to form a small hook, gently pull transducer wires through hole in junction box.
 - b) Solder wires to circuit board according to wiring diagram. Observe color code.
 - c) Secure circuit board in junction box using two screws removed in step 2b. Do not overtighten.
 6. REPLACE MAIN HOUSING
 - a) Place main housing over vertical shaft bearing rotor. Be careful to align indexing key and channel in these two assemblies.
 - b) Place main housing over vertical shaft bearing rotor until potentiometer coupling is near top of main housing.
 - c) Turn potentiometer adjust thumbwheel until potentiometer coupling is oriented to engage ridge in top of main housing. Set screw on potentiometer coupling should be facing the front opening.
 - d) With potentiometer coupling properly oriented, continue pushing main housing onto vertical shaft bearing rotor until main housing latch locks into position with a "click".
 7. ALIGN VANE
 - a) Connect excitation voltage and signal conditioning electronics to terminal strip according to wiring diagram.
 - b) With mounting post held in position so junction box is facing due south, orient vane to a known angular reference. Details appear in CALIBRATION section.
 - c) Reach in through front of main housing and turn potentiometer adjust thumbwheel until signal conditioning system indicates proper value.
 - d) Tighten set screw* on potentiometer coupling.
 8. REPLACE NOSE CONE
 - a) Screw nose cone into main housing until o-ring seal is seated. Be certain threads are properly engaged to avoid cross-threading.
- #### FLANGE BEARING REPLACEMENT
- If anemometer bearings become noisy or wind speed threshold increases above an acceptable level, bearings may need replacement. Check anemometer bearing condition using a Model 18310 Propeller Torque Disc. Bearings are replaced as follows.
1. REMOVE OLD BEARINGS
 - a) Unscrew nose cone. Set o-ring aside for later use.
 - b) Loosen set screw on magnet shaft collar and remove magnet.
 - c) Slide propeller shaft out of nose cone assembly.
 - d) Remove front bearing cap which covers front bearing.
 - e) Remove both front and rear bearings from nose cone assembly. Insert edge of a pocket knife under bearing flange and lift it out.
 2. INSTALL NEW BEARINGS
 - a) Insert new front and rear bearings into nose cone.
 - b) Replace front bearing cap.
 - c) Carefully slide propeller shaft thru bearings.
 - d) Place magnet on propeller shaft allowing 0.5mm (0.020") clearance from rear bearing.
 - e) Tighten set screw* on magnet shaft collar.
 - f) Screw nose cone into main housing until o-ring seal is seated. Be certain threads are properly engaged to avoid cross-threading.
- #### VERTICAL SHAFT BEARING REPLACEMENT
- Vertical shaft bearings are much larger than the anemometer bearings. Ordinarily, these bearings will require replacement less frequently than anemometer bearings. Check bearing condition using a Model 18331 Vane Torque Gauge.
- Since this procedure is similar to POTENTIOMETER REPLACEMENT, only the major steps are listed here.
1. REMOVE MAIN HOUSING
 2. UNSOLDER TRANSDUCER WIRES AND REMOVE TRANSDUCER ASSEMBLY Loosen set screws at base of transducer assembly and remove entire assembly from vertical shaft.
 3. REMOVE VERTICAL SHAFT BEARING ROTOR by sliding it upward off vertical shaft.
 4. REMOVE OLD VERTICAL BEARINGS AND INSTALL NEW BEARINGS. When inserting new bearings, be careful not to apply pressure to bearing shields.
 5. REPLACE VERTICAL SHAFT BEARING ROTOR.
 6. REPLACE TRANSDUCER & RECONNECT WIRES
 7. REPLACE MAIN HOUSING
 8. ALIGN VANE
 9. REPLACE NOSE CONE.

WIND SPEED SPECIFICATION SUMMARY

Range	0 to 100 m/s (224 mph)
Sensor	18 cm diameter 4-blade helicoid propeller molded of polypropylene
Pitch	29.4 cm air passage per revolution
Distance Constant	2.7 m (8.9 ft.) for 63% recovery
Threshold Sensitivity	1.0 m/s (2.2 mph)
Transducer	Centrally mounted stationary coil, 2K Ohm nominal DC resistance
Transducer Output	AC sine wave signal induced by rotating magnet on propeller shaft. 80 mV p-p at 100 rpm. 8.0 V p-p at 10,000 rpm.
Output Frequency	3 cycles per propeller revolution (0.098 m/s per Hz)

WIND DIRECTION (AZIMUTH) SPECIFICATION SUMMARY

Range	360° mechanical, 355° electrical (5° open)
Sensor	Balanced vane, 38 cm (15 in) turning radius.
Damping Ratio	0.3
Delay Distance	1.3 m (4.3 ft) for 50% recovery
Threshold Sensitivity	1.1 m/s (2.5 mph) at 10° displacement
Damped Natural Wavelength	7.4 m (24.3 ft)
Undamped Natural Wavelength	7.2 m (23.6 ft)
Transducer	Precision conductive plastic potentiometer, 10K ohm resistance (±20%), 0.25% linearity, life expectancy 50 million revolutions, rated 1 watt at 40° C, 0 watts at 125° C
Transducer Excitation Requirement	Regulated DC voltage, 15 VDC max
Transducer Output	Analog DC voltage proportional to azimuth angle with regulated excitation voltage applied across potentiometer.

FLANGE BEARING REPLACEMENT

If anemometer bearings become noisy or wind speed threshold increases above an acceptable level, bearings may need replacement. Check anemometer bearing condition using a Model 18310 Propeller Torque Disc. If needed, bearings are replaced as follows.

1. REMOVE OLD BEARINGS
 - a) Unscrew nose cone. Set o-ring aside for later use.
 - b) Loosen set screw on magnet shaft collar and remove magnet.
 - c) Slide propeller shaft out of nose cone assembly.
 - d) Remove front bearing cap which covers front bearing.
 - e) Remove both front and rear bearings from nose cone assembly. Insert edge of a pocket knife under bearing flange and lift it out.
2. INSTALL NEW BEARINGS
 - a) Insert new front and rear bearings into nose cone.
 - b) Replace front bearing cap.
 - c) Carefully slide propeller shaft thru bearings.
 - d) Place magnet on propeller shaft allowing 0.5 mm (0.020") clearance from rear bearing.
 - e) Tighten set screw* on magnet shaft collar.
 - f) Screw nose cone into main housing until o-ring seal is seated. Be certain threads are properly engaged to avoid cross-threading.

AirData reports are produced from a direct query of the AQS Data Mart. The data represent the best and most recent information available to EPA from state agencies. However, some values may be absent due to incomplete reporting, and some values may change due to quality assurance activities. The AQS database is updated by state, local, and tribal organizations who own and submit the data.

Readers are cautioned not to rank order geographic areas based on AirData reports. Air pollution levels measured at a particular monitoring site are not necessarily representative of the air quality for an entire county or urban area.

This report is based on monitor-level summary statistics. Air quality standards for some pollutants (PM_{2.5} and Pb) allow for combining data from multiple monitors into a site-level summary statistic that can be compared to the standard. In those cases, the site-level statistics may differ from the monitor-level statistics upon which this report is based.
